PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

The Master of Public Health program is designed to equip students with a broad range of skills, knowledge, and attitudes derived from various disciplines which enable them to critically assess and deal effectively with the broad spectrum of public health problems and issues at the local, national and international levels. The program is also designed to provide knowledge and develop skills in specific areas within public health relevant to the student's career goals.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVE

The program outcomes are now outcome-based and aligned with the identified roles of an MPH graduate who is competent to respond to global and local public health issues. The outcomes are also aligned with the eight (8) domains of Core Competencies for Public Health Professionals (Council on Linkages between Academic and Public Health Practice, 2021).
